

Super MAN saves the day

Clackline Haulage has been utilising three MAN trucks purchased a few years ago to add to existing operations and according to owner Ashley Hall, the trucks' features have enabled him to keep-on-trucking.

Ashley said he underwent a significant operation after being stabbed in the stomach in a fast food restaurant.

"I was in the wrong place at the wrong time and the doctors said it would be best not to continue driving for a living, but the MAN vehicle certainly saved my bacon when it came to my business," Ashley said. "I can drive longer hours and feel more comfortable. There are heaps of controls on the steering wheel, and being an automatic you rarely have to take your hands off the wheel.

"It has more features as standard like climate control, and fridge than any other truck."

Clackline Haulage conducts a range of trucking services including a dog run from Northam to a number of venues throughout the Perth metropolitan area. Road trains that travel from the South Australian border and permitted to travel as far as Northam rely on Clackline Haulage to deliver up to 200 trailers a week throughout Perth.

Ashley said he encouraged small business owners to test drive the MAN trucks.

"It's definitely worth getting into a MAN vehicle and anyone who drives for a living will notice the differences straight away. The MAN is quieter than a car and you don't even realise you are doing 100km," he said.

Ashley said his company was very impressed with the ongoing customer service provided by AV Trucks where he purchased the MAN vehicles. "The great thing is that regular maintenance is a cinch. When we book it in to get the drivetrain checked by AV Trucks, we always receive reliable and cost effective service," he said. ●
